

Fig. 3. Scatterplot showing the relationship between the number of species and the number of individuals in the samples. The data were pooled from all samples. The number of species is on the x-axis and the number of individuals is on the y-axis. The data points are represented by open circles. The regression line is shown as a solid line. The equation of the regression line is $y = 1.05x - 0.05$ and the coefficient of determination is $r^2 = 0.98$.

It may seem a stretch that all the Museum's collections contain items from around the world, but the Museum's collections do span the globe. The Museum's collections are made up of many different types of objects, including:

management of all the different companies has been the subject of extensive studies, and major research projects underway that might identify a common set of management strategies across firms. For example, a number of large, multi- and single-industry firms (e.g., General Electric, IBM, McDonald's, etc.) have been identified as being best managed or great performers. The structural and operational characteristics of these firms are being studied in an attempt to determine conditions that allow one company to outperform its competitors. The results of this work have not yet been made available to the general business community.

His new planning to use his trademark with a new clothing line, called Black & White (Black & White Clothing), has been cancelled. The new clothing line will be called Black & White (Black & White Clothing) and will be sold in the same stores as the clothing line. The new clothing line will be sold in the same stores as the clothing line. The new clothing line will be sold in the same stores as the clothing line.
